Beghou Consulting LLC seeks Senior Consultants in Boston, MA.

Leads project teams in the design and development of project deliverables. Advises on strategy, team resources, and deadlines, and assumes data analytics tasks as necessary to support internal team and clients. Works with project leadership to define project scope and development approach for each project, including conducting issue analysis and hypothesis development. Synthesizes findings, develops recommendations, and communicates results to clients and internal teams. Assumes project management responsibilities for each project with minimal supervision, including managing client communication, leading meetings, drafting agendas, managing timelines, and serving as a regular point of contact for clients with little input from the project manager. Works independently or with a team to build out data processes. Co-ordinates with diverse teams, including those globally. Frequently utilizes coding to facilitate data processing and reporting. Participates in business development and contributes to internal firm activities. Provides project guidance for more junior team members regarding process improvements, planned approaches for client requests, or transition of new deliverables. Fosters an innovative and inclusive team-oriented work environment. Coaches and mentors junior team members on their professional development and serves as their Professional Development Manager.
